Overview:

Bipolar Disorder (BD) typically creates chaos in an individual's life, making it challenging to diagnose and treat. Early detection is difficult as well as treatment adherence and intervention during episodes. Which information to deliver to your clients at which moment? A potential solution might be found in Dialectical Behavior Therapy (DBT). Known for its effectiveness in treating Borderline Personality Disorder, DBT addresses key issues such as emotion dysregulation, suicidality, impulsivity, interpersonal deficits and treatment non-adherence. These are all critical areas of focus in interventions for Bipolar Disorder. Based on Sheri Van Dijk's ground-breaking work on using DBT with Bipolar Disorder, this workshop reviews the diagnosis and different types of BD and explains all the DBT skills and tools that are relevant in treating BD. Participants will receive information to help clients better understand their diagnosis. After a review of existing psychotherapies being used to treat bipolar disorder, Sheri will discuss the efficacy of DBT in treating this complex illness. The workshop will provide an overview of how to teach the more important DBT skills to clients with BD. A hands-on course complete with worksheets and exercises!

Learning objectives:

1. Improve their ability to help clients understand and accept their diagnosis
2. Understand the rationale for using DBT in treating BD
3. Be familiar with the main DBT skills used in treating BD including: re-regulating emotions, mindfulness and emotion regulation, radical acceptance, distress tolerance
4. Understand considerations in providing group and individual DBT

Sheri is the winner of the 2010 R.O. Jones Award of the Canadian Psychiatric Association for her research on using DBT skills with bipolar disorder.

She has extensive training in mindfulness and DBT and has been running DBT-informed groups since 2004.
